

In a story about higher education and the status of local universities, Dillard University reports that classes are in full session now that Hurricane Issac has passed. Communications Director Mona Duffel Jones shares the damage to the university campus.

Read more on nola.com...

