

Dillard President Dr. Walter Kimbrough acknowledges the financial challenges universities and colleges feel in the current economic climate. Centenary College, which took in Dillard students during Hurricane Issac, has gone through some very tough changes.

“We’ve all had to make sacrifices and really determine what our colleges and universities are about,” Kimbrough said. “But there is still value to a private education, and students continue to see that.”

Read more in theadvertiser.com...

See more of this article...&nbsp;