

The nationally renowned Keys to Degrees residential program for single parents has been awarded a $700,000 grant for replication at Dillard University in New Orleans. With funding from the W.K. Kellogg Foundation, the program will provide educational opportunities for enrolled student parents and their children together at Dillard University beginning in fall 2013.

“Our students have a need for a program like this, and we are absolutely excited to work with Endicott College to serve the needs of our single parents on campus,” said Dr. Kevin Bastian, Assistant Vice President for Student Success and Support Services, Dillard University.

Read more about this program on prweb.com...

and on americantowns.com...