Where do public health professionals work?

Public health professionals work in both the public and private sectors. Many public health graduates find work in the public sector in local, state, or federal health departments. The jobs available at health departments range from Food Safety Inspectors and Health Educators, to Policy Analysts and Epidemiologists. Other public health professionals find work in university systems as researchers.

Those interested in working for a non-profit organization can find jobs in health advocacy, policy, or research for organizations such as the American Cancer Society, the Red Cross, or a local non-profit that focuses on area-specific health issues.

Still other public health professionals find work in the private sector, working in randomized control trials for pharmaceutical companies or for health insurance companies.
