

BLACK HISTORY MONTH 2012

Events

86th Annual National Celebration of Black History

Opening Program Feb. 1, 2012

7:00 P. M.

John Georges Auditorium Professional Schools Building

“The Background and Contemporary Meaning of Celebrating Black History”

The celebration, set for 7 p.m. in the Georges Auditorium of the Professional Schools Building, will feature a lecture from Dr. Alan Colón, eminent professor of African diasporan studies and professor of African world studies at Dillard University. The lecture is titled “The Background and Contemporary Meaning of Celebrating Black History.” This event is free and open to the public.

Art Exhibit Featuring Dillard Alumna Darlene A. Moore

Opening Reception Feb. 2, 2012

5:30 P.M. - 7:30 P.M.

The Opelousas Museum and Interpretive Center will feature works of art by four African-American artists for Black History Month. The exhibition opens with a reception from 5:30 p.m. to 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 2, and will run through March 31. Featured artists will be Ella Guillory, Randell Henry, Ronald Kennedy and Darlene A. Moore.

Moore is a United Methodist minister and visual artist who received a bachelor of arts degree from Dillard University in New Orleans and master of divinity degree from Gammon Theological Seminary in Atlanta. Her designs and logos have been used in association with the Methodist Heritage Center and on the cover of several international publications through the United Methodist Church. Moore has shown her paintings and collages in various galleries and art spaces across the Louisiana region.

Coming Soon...

Black Heritage Ball

Dates and time to follow.

For Black History Month, Dillard University recognizes its distinguished alumni who were firsts in their fields. For Black History Month, Dillard University recognizes its distinguished alumni who were firsts in their fields.

